Public Works and Engineering e-Brief

Featured Story

From Discovery to Construction: Needleseye Park

Employees in Oak Hill, West Virginia, are using maps, imagery, and mobile apps to track the development and organization of Needleseye Park.

Read the Story →

Stay Connected With Esri

Fall into the Latest Issue of
Esri News for State & Local Government

Access the Newsletter

Esri News for State and Local Government | Fall Issue Out Now

This issue features the Parks and Open Space team from Eugene, Oregon, and their response to severe ice storms with GIS; Special Achievement in GIS (SAG) Award winners; and how the Cobb County, Georgia, PARKS GIS team revolutionized their trail sign system with US National Grid coordinates.

Read More →

💡 Tip of the Month

ArcGIS Velocity allows users to write data for various outputs, including storage, streaming, or alerting.

Learn More →

💬 Quote of the Month

"Right from the start, the greatest challenge has been people, not technology—getting the right business processes in place and ensuring that data remains fresh as it is added to the various GIS layers."

Christine Thome, GIS Manager, Port of Los Angeles (POLA)

Read the Story →

Video

Planning Parks and Recreation for the Next Generation

Next-Generation Public Works—Blazing a Trail to Smart Parks Webinar

Learn how the Public Works Parks and Open Space (POS) team from the City of Eugene, Oregon, revolutionized their park management operations through GIS.

Watch the Video →